What is Lambani?

The Lambani is an embroidery amalgam of mirror work, cross-stitch, and quilting stitches with borders of "Kangura" patchwork applique, done on loosely woven handloom base fabric. The craft is performed by a semi-nomadic community known as lambanis or banjaras, mostly settled in southern and middle India.

About Lambani Women

Banjara women are mostly into household chores. They utilize their free time fruitfully by making these beautiful Banjara products. They pick up this craft at a very early age from their mothers. All the products are made for the daily use purpose or their daughter's marriage. All the colors are chosen, motifs are used, fabrics are inherited from their mother, as it is made traditionally.

To support the work of these women, We, The Indian Spirit came with a range of beautiful Lambani products.

About Lambani

Lambanis are semi-nomadic people who are mostly found in Southern & middle India

The Lambani women practise a unique embroidery craft, also known as Lambani

This embroidery includes mirror work, overlaid, cross & quilting stitches with Kangura patchwork

The dyes are derived from vegetables & fruits like kattha, rathanjot, pomegranate peel, etc

For decoration, obsolete coins, cowrie shells, buttons are used

Lambani art is finally witnessing a revival with the assistance of aware consumers

In the present day, the Lambani embroidery can be seen making a fashion statement as the demand from the present generation increases & the art become a vogue.
